Historical Note

The Cultural Heritage Commission of the City of South Pasadena began on April 7, 1971, pursuant of Ordinance No. 1591, approved signed by Mayor William C. Harker.

By its ordinance, the job of the Cultural Heritage Commission is to officially deal with the designation of culturally important landmarks. These designations create a time factor during which an endangered spot or site may be protected while the citizenry and its representatives, along with the owner have an opportunity to discuss and decide its future.

Currently, the Cultural Heritage Commission is a five member body that is advisory to the City Council on all issues relating to the identification, retention, and preservation of landmarks and historic districts.
